

2017/2018 BUDGET PROPOSALS – TAX OVERVIEW

By the Werksmans Tax Team

LEGAL BRIEF FEBRUARY 2017

INTRODUCTION

While the increase in the maximum marginal rate for individuals to 45% was widely forecast, with trusts being taxable at the same flat rate, the increase in the rate of dividends tax from 15% to 20% (and concomitantly, the same increase in the effective tax rate of foreign dividends) came like a bolt out of the blue. This increase is clearly aimed only at domestic shareholders because most non-resident shareholders will be protected by double tax agreements, and, tellingly, the withholding tax rates on interest and royalties remained unchanged at 15%. The new top bracket, starting at R1.5 million will, so the Minister of Finance contends, only affect approximately 100,000 taxpayers, but these taxpayers will now be responsible for 26.3% of the total tax collected from the personal income tax system.

A consequence of the increase in the maximum marginal rate is that it increases the maximum effective rate of capital gains tax (CGT) for individuals from 16.4% to 18%, and for trusts from 32.8% to 36%. We must be thankful for small mercies that the CGT inclusion rate itself was not also increased. Also of note is an absence of any changes to the estate duty regime or the taxation of local trusts, both as recommended by The Davis Tax Committee, which was another set of “reforms” widely expected to be announced.

In addition to the tax changes, the Budget documentation sets out a significant number of proposed amendments to the various fiscal Acts. Many of these are either of a highly technical or esoteric nature, and therefore we have limited ourselves to reporting on those which we believe are more of widespread interest to individuals and companies.

INDIVIDUALS

PERSONAL INCOME TAX AND CGT

As stated, individuals earning more than R1.5 million of taxable income per year will be taxed at a new maximum marginal rate of 45%, with the result that the top effective rate of CGT increases to 18% from 16.4%. The first R40 000 of exempt capital gains remains unchanged.

FOREIGN-EMPLOYMENT INCOME TAX EXEMPTION

Due to the residence-basis of taxation employed in South Africa, (in general) income earned by a natural person who is a resident of South Africa, even from employment outside of South Africa, is subject to tax locally. However, an exemption from income tax exists for remuneration earned by any person for services rendered outside South Africa provided the individual spends a sufficient amount of (statutorily defined) time outside the country.

A potential result of this exemption is that, depending on the domestic laws of certain jurisdictions, the income earned in that foreign jurisdiction may profit from double non-taxation. The proposed amendment is to exempt the foreign-earned income in South Africa only if it is subject to tax in the foreign country in which it is earned. It is as yet unclear whether the rate of tax payable in the foreign jurisdiction will have any bearing on the exemption in South Africa, or whether even the payment of a relatively low rate of tax in the foreign jurisdiction will suffice.

TRUSTS

REFINING MEASURES TO PREVENT TAX AVOIDANCE THROUGH THE USE OF TRUSTS

Following the 2016 Budget Speech, section 7C was introduced into the Income Tax Act to curb the tax-free transfer of wealth to trusts, both onshore and offshore. This section comes into effect on 1 March 2017 and effectively deems a donation where there is either no interest charged on a loan to a trust or where the rate of interest charged is lower than the "official rate of interest", on which there will consequently be donations tax chargeable at 20% every year the loan is in place. Since the announcement of the provision, there has been some planning undertaken to circumvent the application of this section by instead making interest-free or low-interest loans to companies owned by trusts. The proposed amendment will now broaden the scope of section 7C by making loans to companies owned by trusts subject to the same rules as those for loans to trusts. This anti-avoidance measure will not extend to trusts that are not used for (perceived) estate-planning, for example, certain trading trusts or to employee share scheme trusts.

COMPANIES

CORPORATE TAX AND DIVIDENDS TAX

The corporate tax rate has remained unchanged at 28%, however with the increase of the withholding tax on dividends to 20%, this means the effective rate of tax paid by a shareholder who is a natural person or trust, now stands at 42.4%.

DISPOSAL OF SHARES

When companies sell shares in other companies, especially in subsidiaries, it has become widespread to structure the disposal by way of a subscription for new shares by the acquirer into the target company, followed by the target company buying back its shares from the existing shareholder. This gives rise to a dividend in the existing shareholder's/seller's hands, which is tax free if a company, rather than the seller having to pay CGT. It was announced in the 2016 Budget Speech that these arrangements "merits a review to determine if additional countermeasures are required". No countermeasures were, however, introduced. It has, nonetheless, again been announced that specific countermeasures will be introduced "to curb the use of share buyback schemes", although no details have again been provided as to when and how this will be addressed. In fact, even as far back as 2008, when the dividends tax legislation was first enacted, Treasury was made fully aware that share buy-backs could be used to avoid CGT by keeping the proceeds within the dividends regime, where they had historically been under STC, instead of bringing them within the CGT regime. And Treasury took a deliberate decision to retain the status quo. And they even caused some anti-avoidance rules to be included which recategorised a dividend as proceeds for CGT purposes, but the rules were so narrow that they barely applied to any of the transactions.

CONTRIBUTED TAX CAPITAL

The contributed tax capital (CTC) of a company is a notional amount which is effectively equal to the share capital created less any amounts that have been returned to shareholders. It is accordingly reduced by any capital that is subsequently distributed by the company to its shareholders. This does not constitute a dividend and is therefore not subject to dividends tax. It is noted that a mechanism has been identified in terms of which subsidiaries with foreign shareholders increase their CTC and thereby avoid payment of dividends tax through capital distributions to its foreign shareholders. It is proposed that amendments be made to prevent the situation where these capital distributions are not subject to CGT in the hands of the foreign shareholder, i.e. where the underlying investment is not immovable property and therefore not within the SA CGT net.

CORPORATE REORGANISATION RULES

The corporate reorganisation rules, contained in sections 41 to 47 of the Income Tax Act, provide for the tax-free transfer of assets for corporate restructuring purposes. These rules are, however, subject to certain limitations on how the transfer is funded. Currently, as for example in terms of a section 44 amalgamation transaction, the only acceptable means of funding the transfer of assets is by either obtaining shares in the buyer of assets or the buyer assuming the debts of the seller. Cash or other assets are not acceptable and, with respect to debt, only unconditional obligations are catered for. It is proposed that the assumption of future contingent liabilities be considered as acceptable consideration where the parties agree that the buyer will assume some of the future contingent liabilities of the seller, because there is a real economic effect on the sale as the seller will be freed from future cost relating to those liabilities.

EXEMPTION FOR INTRA-GROUP DEBT FORGIVENESS EXTENDED TO TAX DEDUCTIBLE EXPENSES

The income tax implications for a borrower resulting from the waiver of a debt by a lender vary depending on the manner in which the borrower applied the debt. Thus a debtor may have CGT implications if for example the debt was applied for purposes of acquiring a capital asset. The CGT rules do, however, provide an exemption from the debt reduction provisions in the case where the debt is reduced between two companies forming part of the same domestic group of companies. Section 19 of the Income Tax Act dictates the income tax implications for the borrower if the debt was applied for purposes of funding tax deductible operating expenses or trading stock, but does not contain the same exemption for companies forming part of the same domestic group of companies. Under the status quo there is, accordingly, a disparity between the tax treatment of domestic intra-group debt relief where the borrower applied the loan capital to acquire capital assets as opposed to trading stock.

The 2017 Budget Review aims to remedy this disparity by specifically proposing the domestic intra-group debt relief exemption from the debt reduction provisions be extended to instances in which the loan capital was used to fund tax deductible expenses.

CONCESSION FOR THE CONVERSION OF DEBT INTO EQUITY

Various methods have been applied in practice between parties in an effort to compromise debt. A common method includes the subscription for shares by a creditor, and the subscription price being set-off against the face value of the debt. In this regard, the 2017 Budget Review proposes a concession to allow for the conversion of debt into equity, specifically where a debtor settles a debt by the issuance of shares. Interest capitalised but previously claimed as a deduction will however result in a taxable recoupment.

THIRD PARTY BACKED SHARES

Currently, section 8EA of the Income Tax Act provides that dividends received from (mainly) preference shares which are secured by third parties are treated as ordinary revenue, subject to "qualifying purpose" exemptions. Legitimate transactions may be inhibited by the narrow scope of the "qualifying purpose" exemptions. As a result, it is proposed that the current exemption on third-party backed shares with regard to asset-backed securities be further refined to cover all qualifying purposes.

INTERNATIONAL

FOREIGN MEMBER FUNDS

Foreign member funds with a special tax dispensation will be established to enable local and foreign fund managers to establish and manage funds targeted for investments into Africa and the rest of the world. The specific relief mentioned is that foreign investors will be exempt from the interest withholding tax. Fees earned by local asset managers and collective investment scheme (CIS) managers will be subject to tax in South Africa.

DOMESTIC TREASURY MANAGEMENT COMPANIES

If a company qualifies as a domestic treasury management company, it benefits from tax relief in respect of foreign currency gains and losses as it is allowed to choose a foreign currency as its functional currency rather than ZAR. It is noted that the current qualifying criteria for domestic treasury management companies in relation to tax residence is very restrictive. The qualifying criteria are to be reviewed.

ACQUISITION OF FOREIGN IP BY SA MULTINATIONALS

Current anti-avoidance measures discourage the use of SA-based infrastructure to develop offshore intellectual property because the Income Tax Act does not allow deductions for payments made to a foreign person in respect of the use of "tainted" intellectual property. While these measures were designed to prevent erosion of the tax base, they affect legitimate commercial transactions, and consideration will be given to relaxing them.

FOREIGN COMPANIES HELD BY INTERPOSED TRUSTS

The proposals announced in the 2015 Budget Review in respect of the introduction of anti-abuse measures aimed at foreign companies held by interposed trusts is again on the agenda. Currently, foreign companies held by a discretionary trust are not Controlled Foreign Companies. Specific countermeasures to curb this are to be introduced, but yet again no details have been provided.

VAT

CLARIFYING THE VAT TREATMENT ON LEASEHOLD IMPROVEMENTS

Currently no guidelines exist in respect of the value-added tax (VAT) treatment of leasehold improvements effected by the lessee to the leasehold property during the period of a lease agreement. It is now proposed that amendments be made to clarify the VAT treatment in respect of the time and value of supply of leasehold improvements on leasehold property.

EXPANSION OF ELECTRONIC SERVICES

Foreign electronic services provided to South African consumers have been included in the VAT system since 2014. These taxable services will now include cloud computing and services provided using online applications.

TAX ADMINISTRATION

Due to the possibility of interest payable by SARS accruing over a number of tax years, and in an attempt to avoid complications in then taxing that interest, or interest that is adjusted for previous tax years, it is proposed that interest payable by SARS should be deemed to accrue to the recipient on the date of payment thereof by SARS.

GENERAL

Also mentioned in the 2017 Budget Review:

- > In line with the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) led base erosion and profit shifting (BEPS) initiatives, SARS is updating the Transfer Pricing Practice Note in line with the OECD Transfer Pricing Guidelines to include new guidance on the arm's length principle and an agreed approach for pricing of intangibles that are difficult to value.
- > The tax on sugary beverages will be implemented as soon as the necessary legislation is approved by Parliament and signed by the President. The proposed tax rate will be 2.1c/gram for sugar content in excess of 4g/100ml.

TAX RATES AND THRESHOLDS

ABOUT WERKSMANS TAX PRACTICE

The Werksmans Tax Practice is able to respond swiftly and effectively to South African and international tax matters. Team members have many years' experience in consulting to the commercial sector and are able to provide integrated advice and assistance on a wide range of local or international tax issues. Ongoing tax changes and the aggressive stance of the South African Revenue Service have elevated tax law in South Africa to a highly specialised area of practice.

The many changes in tax law since 2001 have resulted in a complex tax system, the complexity of which increases annually with comprehensive amendments. These cover multiple aspects such as ever-changing corporate restructuring rules, tax rules affecting financial instruments, rules affecting retirement and so on. The team's focus is on assisting corporates and high-net-worth individuals who seek comprehensive, up-to-date tax advice.

Services range from consulting on the tax aspects of clients' commercial dealings to interacting on their behalf with the tax authorities and, where necessary, dealing with objections and disputes. Team members are also skilled in handling settlement negotiations, appeals in the Tax Court and High Court, and alternative dispute resolution processes.

Special areas of expertise include the tax aspects of commercial activities such as mergers and acquisitions (M&A), private equity and black economic empowerment transactions, and corporate reconstructions.

In terms of international tax services, the team has a well-established track record in inward and outward investment matters and offshore structuring, taking into account the exchange control implications thereof.

Services include dealing with:

- > Domestic tax: income tax, withholding tax, capital gains tax, employees' tax, value-added tax and securities transfer tax;
- > International tax: inward and outward investment;
- > Estate planning: domestic and international;
- > Financial services and products: tax rules relating to insurance, private equity, securitisations, hedge funds, structured and project finance, debt and derivative instruments;
- > Tax structuring of black economic empowerment transactions, M&A, unbundlings, reconstructions;
- > Management buyouts, distributions, funding, securities issues and buybacks;
- > Exchange control advice in relation to the above;
- > Liaison and negotiation with tax authorities and regulators; and
- > Tax litigation and dispute resolution: settlement negotiations, alternative dispute resolution, objections and Tax Court appeals.
